Victorian Pistol News

The Victorian Pistol News was published from February 1983 in a printed format titled "The Pistol In Victoria"; the second edition introduced the name "Victorian Pistol News". To date there have been 110 publications, each with up to 60 pages of news and information for the Victorian pistol shooters of VAPA.

The documents.

Initially all copies were printed in black ink on matt white paper and posted to members. Gradually there were developments in paper quality but the only colour was on the front and back covers.

In February 2008 editor Kim Frazer introduced some coloured pictures then in 2014 Roger Wakelin introduced full colour throughout. As mentioned the earlier editions were all printed posted and as from 2013 the format changed to the electronic format with copies new emailed to member with copies also on the VAPA website.

The covers.

The first edition used the title "The Pistol In Victoria" and was printed on yellow paper. The second edition (which wasn't until 1986) introduced the title we still use "Victorian Pistol News", a graphic design by Suzanne Whelan and was printed on blue matt paper. This graphic design was retained up until December 1997 when there was a change in the graphics and introduced a photograph in the lower half of the page. In September 2001 there was a change in the layout with new masthead and contents bar down the right side. In July 2008 another change to the masthead at the top of the page, a large photograph in the mid section and contents at the bottom. July 2013 introduced the VAPA logo in colour and a variation to the masthead. July 2014 introduced a new format with a coloured background and changed masthead.

The editors.

Editors are volunteers who do their best to produce a document that conveys the news, results and items of interest to members. They work from home on personal computers using whatever software package they have to produce each edition. While the most recent editions are digital (sent out as a PDF file by email) the earlier editions were printed by a printing house and then packaged, labelled and posted to each member. With each process requiring acquired skill it should be mentioned that Ian Simm was the editor who took the VPN through from the paper edition to the digital version in April 2013. The editors:
